Farewell Frederick

Mr. Frederick O'Brien, the able city editor of P. C. Advertiser, has resigned from the staff of that paper, and will leave Honolulu for San Francisco by the Rosamond. Mr. O'Brien has made many friends here during the time he held the responsible position on the Advertiser, and has proven himself a news paper man of great ability, a gentleman and a good fellow all around. Our climate does not agree with the health of his wife, and Mr. O'Brien consequently decided to return to the Coast. Our best wishes for his future success goes with our friend, who we hope some day will visit Honolulu and find some of the old "boys" still around.

A Brutal Assault.

Last evening police officer Charles Muleitner was assaulted by a mob and seriously injured while on

About 7 o'clock officer Aubrey telephoned for the patrol wagon to remove a drunken man from Kee walo. Muleitner was sent out with the wagon, secured Aubrey's quarry, and, while on the way back, The Irmgard arrive1 yesterday heard a big row at the corner of Punchtowl and Queen streets.

He stopped the wagon and arrested one Kauakupihea, who seemed to be the principal disturber of the peace. The man escaped, with the officer in hot pursuit, and after jumping a fence Kauakupihea was overtaken. At that moment a crowd headed by a notorious Hawaiian brawler set upon the officer who made a brave battle. He drew his elub, which is of the very inferior pattern now used in the police force and of course it was broken at the first blow and the officer was at the mercy of the mob, which knocked him down, broke his nose, fractured his jaw and kicked him unmercifully. Two white men came to the assistance of and saved him from being killed.

The officer had pluckily held on to his prisoner and land-d him eventually in the Station House, where medical assistance was immedistely procured for the wounded policeman, whose injuries, although not necessarily fatal, are very painful. Several arrests in connection with the cowardly assault have been Auto's Alright.

L. T. Grant, the manager of the Hawaiian Automobile Company, took representatives of the press out for a ride on Saturday, in the new automobiles, and the speed with which the road from the Automobile House to Waikiki was covered made even the representative of the local Arizona paper look pale.

The carriages run smoothly and safely in spite of the bad condition of the roads, and it is a pleasure to drive in them especially when the goal is the Hotel Annex, where Grant looked to the inner man of the ink-slingers.

"Double 7" is the 'phone call number for the automobiles, and twenty hacks are now ready for business. Hacks not engaged, but on the road, will display a small flag from the dashboard for the benefit of people on the street who should want a conveyance. The business will be conducted in an upto date manner, and there is no reason why it shouldn't be as big a success in Honolulu, as it is else-
